1. Introduction & Program Overview

Three consultative sessions were conducted on December 26th & 30th, 2025 & Aril 06th, 2026 in Committee Room of Municipal Committee Pakpattan under the Punjab Inclusive Cities Program (PICP). The first consultative session was exclusively for women. The objective of these consultative sessions was to create awareness among primary stakeholders, including Municipal Committee (MC) officials, community representatives, and citizens, about the program framework, objectives, and implementation arrangements. The session aimed to promote awareness, encourage stakeholder participation, and ensure alignment of proposed investments with local needs.

The consultative session under the Punjab Inclusive Cities Program (PICP) was deliberately designed to ensure broad and inclusive participation from all segments of society. Special efforts were made to include participants from all walks of life, with particular emphasis on vulnerable and marginalized groups, to ensure that their voices and concerns were adequately reflected in the consultation process.

Recognizing the importance of gender inclusion in urban service delivery, a gender-sensitive approach was adopted throughout the consultation. In this regard, a separate consultative session was conducted with women participants to provide a comfortable and enabling environment for open discussion. The session focused on understanding women's specific needs, challenges, and priorities related to water supply, sanitation, drainage, safety, and access to municipal services.

This inclusive and gender-responsive consultation approach reinforced PICP's commitment to equitable service delivery, social inclusion, and citizen-centered planning.

During the session, participants were briefed on the overall vision of PICP, which focuses on improving access to safely managed water supply, sanitation, drainage, and hygiene services, while simultaneously strengthening the institutional, governance, and financial performance of selected MCs. The importance of inclusive service delivery, transparency, and citizen engagement was emphasized as a core principle of the program.

It was also explained that PICP follows a results-based financing approach, where achievement of defined targets and compliance with Minimum Access Conditions (MACs) and Disbursement Linked Indicators (DLIs) are critical for program success.

2. Description of Eligible Investment Areas

The session included a detailed explanation of the eligible investment areas under PICP to guide MCs and stakeholders in identifying and proposing appropriate development schemes.

a) Water Supply

Participants were informed that PICP supports investments aimed at improving the reliability, quality, and coverage of water supply services. This includes rehabilitation and extension of water supply networks, improvement of water sources, reduction of non-revenue water, and strengthening of operation and maintenance systems. Emphasis was placed on ensuring safe drinking water for all segments of the population, particularly underserved communities.

b) Sewerage & Drainage

The importance of sewerage and drainage infrastructure was discussed in detail, highlighting its role in improving public health and urban resilience. Eligible investments include construction, rehabilitation, and expansion of sewerage networks and drainage systems to address sanitation challenges, prevent waterlogging, and reduce flood risks in urban areas.

c) Wastewater Treatment Plant (WWTP)

Participants were informed about investments related to wastewater treatment facilities under PICP. The session emphasized that proper treatment of wastewater is essential to protect the environment, reduce pollution of water bodies, and improve overall urban sanitation. Compliance with environmental and social safeguards was highlighted as a key requirement for such investments.

d) Grievance Redress Mechanism (GRM) under PICP

The Grievance Redress Mechanism under PICP was explained as an important tool for accountability and transparency. Participants were informed about the process for lodging complaints, tracking grievances, and ensuring timely resolution. The role of MCs in maintaining an effective, accessible, and responsive GRM system was highlighted.

e) MC's Dynamic Website

The session emphasized the requirement for MCs to maintain a dynamic and regularly updated website. The website serves as a platform for disclosure of information related to PICP activities, approved projects, budgets, procurement, and citizen feedback. Transparency, public access to information, and improved communication with citizens were highlighted as key benefits.

3. Citizens' Feedback

A dedicated session was held to receive feedback from citizens and community representatives. Participants shared their concerns and priorities related to water supply shortages, sewerage blockages, drainage issues and service quality. Citizens highlighted that areas such as Mohallah Chah Tootian Wala, Rehman Town, Ali Ameer Colony, Main Road Malika Hans, Basti Aslam, Farid Nagar, Tehsil Chowk, Mohallah Khanpura, Liaqatabad, Eid Gah Street, Muhalla Pir Karyan, Muhalla Zafar Abad, Mohallah Akhter Abad, and Mohallah Rehmat pura have severe problem of sewerage. Sewerage water is flowing from gutter and there are ponds of sewerage water all around. The locals of the area informed that sewage water is standing on the roads and passers-by are facing serious problems. Residents of the area are also facing many problems because of the dirty water and bad smell. Moreover, they informed that the manhole covers are also broken and there are chances of any fatal incident could be happened. Suggestions were also provided regarding improved complaint handling, timely maintenance and better communication by MCs.

The feedback reflected the ground realities faced by communities and underscored the need for targeted investments in underserved areas. All feedback was documented and acknowledged as a critical input for future planning under PICP.

4. Preparation of Proposed Investments through Bottom-Up Planning

The concept of bottom-up planning was explained in detail, highlighting that investment proposals under PICP should originate from local needs identified through community consultations and stakeholder engagement. MC officials were guided to use citizens' feedback, service delivery gaps, and priority issues as the basis for preparing investment proposals.

The session emphasized that bottom-up planning ensures inclusivity, enhances ownership, and improves sustainability of investments. MCs were encouraged to integrate community inputs into technical planning, budgeting, and prioritization of schemes to ensure alignment with PICP objectives.

Women participants actively shared their experiences and provided valuable feedback on service delivery gaps, grievance redress mechanisms, and the role of MCs in addressing gender-specific concerns. The inputs received from the women's session were documented and considered an integral part of the overall consultation outcomes and bottom-up planning process under PICP.

5. Closing Remarks

The consultative session concluded with closing remarks, reiterating the importance of active stakeholder participation, transparent decision-making, and citizen-centered planning for successful implementation of PICP. Participants were encouraged to continue engaging with MCs and program teams throughout the planning and implementation phases.

The session ended with a collective commitment to work collaboratively towards improving urban service delivery and achieving the objectives of the Punjab Inclusive Cities Program.
